

Bruce Vincent is a third generation logger from Libby, Montana.

Bruce helped form and is currently serving as President of Communities For A Great Northwest, Executive Director of Provider Pals and is co-owner of Environomics.

Bruce speaks throughout the United States and the world, has testified on resource issues before Congress and has appeared on several news programs such as “60 Minutes”. Bruce has been named Timberman of the Year in Montana, National Forest Activist of the Year, received the Agri-Women’s 2007 Veritas Award, and in 2004 received the inaugural Presidential Preserve America Award from President Bush.

Bruce has been married to his wife Patti Jo for over 30 years and has four children, two sons-in-law, one daughter-in-law, and seven grandchildren. His current activities represent a family commitment to responsible environmentalism.

Recent Testimonials:

“Bruce’s humor and down to earth style really engaged the audience and you could tell that participants were motivated to action.” Jeremy Geske, Assistant Executive Director, Minnesota Pork Board

“I cannot tell you how much Bruce touched us here in Kentucky. He made such an impact on all of us. I am not sure we will ever be able to top him with another speaker.” Debbie Ellis, KY Soybean Board

“Perhaps the most amazing speaker I have ever witnessed. If he had been the only speaker at the Conference, it would be worthwhile.”, “Such an excellent view on sustainability – refreshing and relevant to solving and addressing local issues.” -Canadian Farm Business Management Council, Conference Attendees

“It was such a wonderful pleasure having you speak to students, staff and friends of the Faculty. The audience was totally engaged with your presentation. Your messages rang true to each and every person there. In the class I had after you left this afternoon, the students were so excited about your positive, empowering message. Their discussions were very focused and forward thinking rather than reactionary and angry, which too often has been the automatic response in past. I hope we are, or almost are, at the tipping point so that with coordinated concerted effort we can get Manitoba agriculture moving into that important leadership role you were talking about.” -Laurie Connor, Ph.D., P.Ag., Professor & Head, University of Manitoba, Winnipeg